New York, February 4.—Speculative ntiment remained much unsettled togy, as an after-effect of the violent clines which were effected in yester-y's market. There was no resumpon of the heavy liquidation which oke the market yesterday, and this ft the way open to some recovery, to bear interest left uncovered after the a spasm as has occured this week sures a potential demand for stocks fificient to carry prices away from a low level.

The rapidity and the extent of the cline which occured points to a cul-

e low level. The rapidity and the extent of the cline which occured points to a cultination of an ordinary market cycle, was not surprising, therefore, that rush of bears to cover shorts should twe made opening prices well above at night's closing level, which in lift represented a considerable rally om the low prices of the movement. The violence of these movements oved disconcerting to all but the ghly speculative element in the marta and the recovery eliminated some batantial buying which was perived at the lower prices. The bears lifed their forces when any signs of at sort appeared and made fresh atcks. These attacks were most effective in the copper group and escalally American Smelting. The posion of the proposed merger as well the recent statement of annual carnegs of the company were assigned as the recent statement of annual earnings of the company were assigned as asons for its vulnerability. The Hawing group of stocks, notably Chesanke & Ohio, was also picked for attitled. It was these recurrent raids on ites that kept speculative sentiment isottled and made the buying timid to hesitating. Resistance to presere of decline, in turn, gave assurance buyers. The tone of speculative ntiment was kept shifting in that ay, throughout the day.

One of the day's upward movements as in progress at the closing, which as airong with net gains for most ceks. Bonds were irregular. Total les, par value, $3,401,000. United ates bonds were unchanged on call. Total sales of stocks were 990,400 ares.

Will Rebuild Excelsion Plant.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Fredericksburg, Va., February 4.—W,
II. Peden, of this city, whose excelsion
works were destroyed by fire a fow
weeks ago, has determined to rebuild,
and to-day awarded the contract to Contractor B. G. Heffin, for the erection of the new plant on the same site. The new building will be practically fireproof. It is expected that the new industry will be in operation by April.
